PREFACE

HOW CINAHL BEGAN

Although nursing journal publishing began around the turn of the century, until 1961 there was no easy way to identify current articles in the growing number of journals in the field. Three hospital librarians who were indexing the literature for their own nursing staffs decided to pool their efforts to publish one standardized publication. In 1961, Mildred Grandbois, library director of the Glendale Adventist Medical Center, Glendale, California, published the first edition of the CUMULATIVE INDEX TO NURSING LITERATURE (CINL), containing indexing for 1956-1960 from 16 journals.

CINAHL TODAY

The CUMULATIVE INDEX TO NURSING & ALLIED HEALTH LITERATURE (CINAHL) provides authoritative coverage of the literature in nursing and allied health. Over 360 journals are regularly reviewed and indexed for inclusion in each year's five bimonthly issues and cumulative bound volume. Virtually all English-language nursing journals are indexed along with publications of the American Nurses' Association and the National League for Nursing. Primary journals are indexed from thirteen allied health fields:

- Cardiopulmonary Technology
- Emergency Services
- Health Education
- The Medical Assistant
- Medical/Laboratory Technology
- Medical Records

- Occupational Therapy
- Physical Therapy
- The Physician's Assistant
- Radiologic Technology
- Respiratory Therapy
- Social Service in Health Care
- Surgical Technology

Selected journals are also indexed in the areas of consumer health, biomedicine, and health sciences librarianship. In addition, CINAHL indexes books, nursing dissertations, standards of professional practice, and selected conference proceedings.

All materials are indexed according to CINAHL's Subject Heading List, which is designed specifically for nursing and allied health. Each year terms are added as needed to provide immediate and direct access to indexed materials. The structure of this thesaurus is based on the widely used National Library of Medicine's Medical Subject Headings (MeSH) but tailored to meet the needs of nursing and allied health professionals.

ELECTRONIC INDEXES

CINAHL is available online via BRS, Data-Star, and DIA-LOG, and on CD-ROM through CD PLUS, Compact Cambridge, and SilverPlatter. The electronic database covers the period 1983 to date, and includes abstracts from more than 140 regularly indexed journals.

Interpreting Citations

Bibliographic citations provide the information needed to locate materials. To find journal articles in a library, make note of the article title, journal title, publication date, volume number, issue number (if any), and pages. To find books, you will need to know the book title, author, publisher, and publication date. And for dissertations, keep a record of the title, author, school attended, and date. The UMI number facilitates dissertation ordering.

Special features of CINAHL's bibliographic citations help you to judge the value of the materials indexed. Explanatory phrases are added to clarify vague titles. Document types indicate the form of an item (e.g., editorial, research) or the presence of some special data (e.g., statistics, care plans). The number of references and suggested readings are also included in the citation.

AUTHOR SEARCHING

Authors for journal articles, books, and dissertations are listed in separate sections. They are, however, searched identically. Search author names alphabetically in the white pages. The maximum number of authors listed for each citation is three. Additional authors are indicated by et al. The complete bibliographic citation appears only under the name of the first author, with "see" references for the second and third authors.

Persons about whom biographies or obituaries are written may also be found in the author section. They are listed alphabetically and appear within parentheses.

SEARCHING for BOOKS and DISSERTATIONS

The last two sections of the white pages list books and nursing dissertations. These may be searched by subject heading and/or author. (See discussions above.)

POSTPOLIOMYELITIS SYNDROME

A "postpolio" syndrome characterized by new neuromuscular symptoms, including muscle weakness, that develops years after recovery from poliomyelitis. The symptoms may vary from simple nonprogressive deterioration of function, with joint pain, fatigue, and subsequent stabilization, to atypical forms of spinal muscular dystrophy. The new, slowly progressive muscle weakness may occur in muscles that were previously affected by polio and recovered or in muscles that were clinically unaffected by the acute disease.

Before 1991 see under POLIOMYELITIS /complications.
